::::: The Latin pop Princess of Sweden :::::

Sayen is raised in Sweden and born in Chile; she started to sing when she was very young. At 12 years of age Sayen wrote her first song and with that song she won a big competition where the first prize was to perform LIVE at the biggest national radio station in Sweden.

Through the years she has written a lot of songs and at 16 years of age she joined a band called SOMBRAS DE LA CALLE (Shadows of the streets). They were signed by record label REACTIVE SONGS AB. One of the songs she wrote was noticed by the big boy band in Japan called ARASHI, who made a cover of the song and it became a big hit in Asia at that time.

Sayen has many years of TV and radio experience. In Chile she participated on several big entertainment programs and shows for many years. She has also toured in Europe with other productions, for example with Dj Mendez. They visited: Bulgaria, Mallorca, Canary Islands, Russia, Ukraine, Finland and many big cities in Sweden.

In Chile she was invited to perform for the President of Chile when former President Michelle Bachelet was celebrated for winning the elections at the Presidential Palace LA MONEDA in 2006. That same year Sayen performed in other several big festivals. The biggest festival that year was LA PAMPILLA (during the days of celebrations of the independence of Chile) where Sayen and Mendez closed the festival as a final act, they had 180.000 peoples in the audience at the same time.

All of Sayen's performances of TV, live and others, are available on her Youtube channel: <http://www.youtube.com/sayenmusic>

Sayen is a very hard working artist. She always gives more than 200% on stage and that's where she belongs. Sayen's voice and style is often compared to big female artists such as Christina Aguilera and other singing divas.

Her music is influenced by sounds of Miami, for example Pitbull, Jennifer Lopez, Christina Aguilera and even Shakira. Sayen sings in both Spanish and English. She is always invited to perform at big festivals and other important events.

In 2010 she started her own record label MILLARAY RECORDS so that she could release her own music worldwide.

Sayen released her new single and video called: QUIERO TOCAR feat. Pato Pooh through her label. #8 on iTunes
